The National Association of Charitable Recycling Organisations

2011 Annual Conference dinner - Kerry Caulfield

The conference dinner was held on the Deck Bar at Little Creatures Brewing which was a short walk from the Esplanade Fremantle Hotel. Little Creatures Brewing is set inside a massive converted boat shed right on Fishing Boat Harbour. Within the brewery itself is a "cellar door" bar and restaurant and a private loft area. The brewery is totally open and visible to the cellar door and the beer is poured straight from the conditioning tanks, making it as fresh as possible. The name "Little Creatures" is inspired by a song lyric from the Talking Heads Little Creatures album and refers to the live yeast cells that turn the sugars in malt wort into alcohol.

[NACRO NATIONAL ANNUAL CONFERENCE]

Delegates experienced a fantastic selection of share plates accompanied by wine, bubbles and the Little Creatures range of beer and cider. While Daniel Simmons boasted of a grand meal, the long table arrangement didn't distribute the food equitably and many missed out. Others simply didn't like the thought of eating kangaroo. Next time they can sit at my table with two vegetarians.

Known as the one industry event of the year not to be missed, the conference dinner always attracts delegates, their partners and guests, and other industry colleagues. And there's not a tie in sight! But behind the revelry, the conference is a catalyst through which charitable recyclers can unite, share knowledge and experiences and collective wisdom between organisations. There is the opportunity to catch up with old colleagues and friends and to discuss the nature of their businesses and the operating environment in which they work.
